

Stop the rush to adopt new rules and open the process to allow more public comment. Do not allow further consolidation of ownership; that will only lead to a more narrow range of information available to the public. We need a broader range of information in order to have a healthy democracy. There is already much evidence that the present system doesn't foster broad discussion of crucial public issues.